Driver Jimmy Shane (right) and crew member Pat Furnish were busy preparing the U-6 Miss HomeStreet/Miss Madison for testing and qualifying on Friday. Shane took the boat out at about noon but came back in because of debris on the Ohio River.

Cindy Shirley (left) and Pat Furnish work on the U-6 Miss HomeStreet/Miss Madison Friday in the Madison Regatta pits. Shirley, the team's crew chief last year who stepped down after the season, is back with the boat this weekend.

Local race fans (from left) Tina Gray, Kathy Claggett, John Claggett and Mark Gray, all of Madison, watch the activity in the Madison Regatta pits from Vaughn Drive Friday morning.

Madison Regatta drivers head out onto the Wild Bill Cantrell Memorial Race Course to set the course markers before testing and qualifying began Friday. There will be two rounds of H1 Unlimited preliminary heats Saturday and Sunday with the APBA Gold Cup and Indiana Governor's Cup final Sunday as well as Grand Prix World racing and vintage hydro exhibitions on the Ohio River. 3rd man charged with child solicitation

Courier staff report

A joint investigation by the Switzerland County Sheriff's Office and Vevay Police Department has netted a third arrest for attempting to use online social media to solicit sex with a minor.

Brandon W. Mardis, 26, of Williamstown, Kentucky, was arrested on charges of attempted sexual misconduct with a minor, a Level 4 felony, and dissemination of matter harmful to a minor, a Level 5 felony. Mardis' arrest came at the conclusion of a joint investigation that also led to the arrest of a Madison man and a Bennington man on similar charges.

Switzerland County Sheriff Brian L. Morton earlier said that his department and Vevay Police, like a lot of others, conduct ongoing computer crimes investigations to identify suspects seeking to contact underage individuals through social media for illegal purposes. The three arrests were all from that investigation.

The sexual misconduct charge against Mardis involves arranging to have sexual contact with a minor and traveling to meet the minor.

Police had previously charged Jack D. Shelley, 48, of Madison, on two counts of child solicitation, and two counts of dissemination of matter harmful to a minor, and Harry L. Waller, 58, of Bennington with attempted sexual misconduct with a minor, and dissemination of matter harmful to a minor.

County jail hits 185 in inmates

Courier special report

The number of inmates in the Jefferson County jail was at an all-time high Friday morning at 185.

Chief Deputy John Wallace said there were at that time 15 other inmates who have been relocated to various other facilities depending on availability of space.

Jefferson County courts were in session Friday and action there could affect the head count in the jail.

Most of Indiana's 92 counties are wrestling with overcrowded jails and many have been cited by the state because there are more inmates in the facilities than the jails are certified to hold.

Jefferson County's jail is certified to hold 109. While the population usually fluctuates daily, the total number has remained at least in the 160s since early June.

The county reports the head count in the jail each day on its website.

The county was cited by state inspectors in 2017 for several areas of noncompliance in the operations of the jail. The inspection report described multiple issues including overcrowding, lack of beds, toilet and shower facilities, adequate space and understaffing.

After the 2017 inspection, the county commissioners and council were given 180 days to make an action plan to correct the areas of noncompliance.

The Exploratory Jail Committee was created in response to the citations and tasked with researching options such as building a new jail. There has been no formal vote to build a new jail. A 50-acre tract of land that adjoins J.A. Berry Lane and is west of the former Robus Leather facility has been discussed as a possible site for a jail, but the land is undergoing some final soil tests before any decision will be made.

More charges in kidnap case

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff report

A Madison teenager has been charged with six felony counts of aiding in the kidnapping and assault of a 14-year-old Madison girl June 19 — the third person charged in connection with the incident.

Jaylon Walker Wayne Pace, 18, is charged with aiding, inducing or causing an offense (kidnapping) and three counts of aiding, inducing or causing an offense (criminal confinement), all Level 3 felonies. He is also charged with aiding, inducing or causing an offense (battery), a Level 5 felony, and aiding, inducing or causing an offense (obstruction of justice), a Level 6 felony.

The case involves charges of kidnapping and battery of a 14-year-old Madison girl by two 16-year-old Jefferson County girls who are charged as adults in the case.

Elani Hines, of Madison, is charged with kidnapping; criminal confinement, and aiding, inducing, or causing criminal confinement, all Level 3 felonies, and with battery resulting in serious bodily injury, a Level 5 felony while Hailey P. Bartley, of Hanover, is charged with kidnapping and two counts of criminal confinement, all Level 3 felonies, and with battery resulting in serious bodily injury, a Level 5 felony.

According to a probable cause affidavit from the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department, Pace was present at the residence where Hines and Bartley are accused of taking the 14-year-old girl by force from a friend's house where she had planned to stay the night of June 19.

The girl told police Pace was present during the entire incident in which she was repeatedly beaten, threatened and had her hair forcibly cut and that she believed Pace had recorded the incident on a cell phone.

A jury trial has been scheduled for both Hines and Bartley in September. A jury trial for Pace has been scheduled for October.

Clark among 4 to ID West Nile mosquitoes

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — Clark County is now among four Indiana counties that have reported finding mosquitoes carrying the West Nile virus. Health officials in Clark and Elkhart were the first to find mosquitoes carrying the virus on Monday. Marion and Hamilton counties were added to the list on Tuesday. The Indiana State Department of Health says so far no human cases of West Nile virus disease have been detected in 2019. About one in five people who are infected with West Nile virus develop a fever and other symptoms. About one out of 150 infected people develop a serious, sometimes fatal, illness.

Missing boater's body recovered from river

NEW ALBANY — An Indiana conservation officer says the body of a Louisville, Kentucky, man has been recovered after his newly purchased boat crashed, throwing him and a passenger into the Ohio River. Officer Jim Schreck says the body of 26-year-old Donald Watson was located Wednesday near New Albany. He says Watson was operating the boat Monday evening near Clarksville when its motor apparently malfunctioned and he and 28-year-old Levell Washington of Jeffersonville were thrown overboard and swept through the McAlpine Locks and Dam. Firefighters rescued Washington after he called for help on his cellphone. The Floyd County Coroner's Office has ruled accidental drowning as the preliminary cause of Watson's death. Watson had purchased the 18-foot fiberglass boat earlier this week.

No death penalty in murder, cannibalism

JEFFERSONVILLE — A southern Indiana man accused of killing his ex-girlfriend and eating parts of her body will not face the death penalty if convicted. The News and Tribune reports a document filed Friday in Clark County Circuit Court says prosecutors have withdrawn the death penalty in the case and that attorneys for Joseph Oberhansley won't use an insanity or mental health defense. The 38-year-old Oberhansley is accused of killing and mutilating his ex-girlfriend, 46-year-old Tammy Jo Blanton, in Jeffersonville in 2014. Jury selection is set to begin Aug. 19. Oberhansley in May requested a planned insanity defense be withdrawn because he has no mental issues and believes such a defense would be an admission of guilt.

STATE BRIEFS

Bystanders stop man from snatching baby

FORT WAYNE — Fort Wayne police say a man tried to snatch a baby boy from his mother's arms until two bystanders pulled him away. Police say 45-year-old Scott Russell of Fort Wayne was charged Monday with felony kidnapping and battery and misdemeanor battery. Investigators say in an affidavit the woman was sitting in a medical clinic waiting room June 25 when Russell walked up to her and grabbed the baby boy. They say the woman screamed and began kicking Russell, and a second woman and a man also in the waiting room pulled Russell away. The boy suffered scratches. Police found Russell at the clinic. He told an officer he tried to hurt the baby because he was "very angry with the world." He's being held at the Allen County Jail.

Man who stole money bowl fatally shot

INDIANAPOLIS — Indianapolis police say a man selling candy outside his home fatally shot a man who had swiped money from his curbside stand. Thirty-nine-year-old Steven Archie was charged Tuesday with reckless homicide in 31-year-old Tony McClain Jr.'s June 25 killing. He was being held without bond at the Marion County Jail. Court documents say McClain was digging through a box of candy on a table Archie had set up outside his home when McClain grabbed a money bowl from the table and ran to his Jeep, shouting "Candy man! Candy man!" The Indianapolis Star reports that court documents say Archie told officers he shot McClain after he nearly struck him with his Jeep while trying to flee following the theft.

2 arrested in death of teen selling Xbox

GARY — Authorities in northwest Indiana say two people have been arrested in connection with the shooting death of a 16-year-old who was attempting to sell an Xbox. Lake County Sheriff Oscar Martinez tells the Post-Tribune a 17-year-old and 18-year-old were taken into custody Wednesday after the office's tactical unit executed search warrants at two homes, one in Gary and one in Crown Point. Martinez adds the two are being held in the Lake County jail. Gary officials previously said that Johnny Peluyera of Merrillville was shot June 12 after he and his father arranged to sell the gaming console to someone who had contacted them online. Martinez says authorities will seek to charge the 17-year-old as an adult.

New revenge porn laws now in effect

INDIANAPOLIS — Two new Indiana laws are taking aim at people who post intimate images from previous or current relationships online without consent. One of the new laws that took effect Monday would make posting revenge porn a misdemeanor for a first offense, and a felony for a second offense. Lawmakers approved the measure after Republican Sen. Aaron Freeman sponsored it for a third straight year. Freeman says that as a former prosecutor and now a private attorney, he's seen firsthand cases of revenge porn aimed solely at hurting or embarrassing a spouse or significant other. He tells The Journal Gazette that "this stuff needs to end." Indiana's other new revenge porn law permits civil lawsuits against someone accused of distributing nude or intimate images, and allows plaintiffs to pursue damages.

Cause sought for fatal ultralight crash

ORLEANS — Federal authorities are working to determine the cause of an ultralight aircraft crash in southern Indiana that left the pilot dead. State police say the crash happened Monday in a field in northern Orange County. Police say the pilot has been identified as 42-year-old Adam Hill of Orleans. The National Transportation Safety Board says it's investigating the cause of the crash.

Kentucky

Death penalty protocol ruled unconstitutional

FRANKFORT — A judge has ruled Kentucky's death penalty protocol is unconstitutional because it doesn't automatically suspend execution of prisoners with intellectual disabilities. Circuit Judge Phillip Shepherd said Tuesday the rules are flawed because they would allow execution of a prisoner with intellectual disabilities if the prisoner declines further appeals. The ruling came on a motion brought by a dozen death row inmates and filed by the Department of Public Advocacy. Shepherd noted the U.S. Supreme Court prohibits execution of intellectually disabled people. Assistant Public Advocate David Barron said the ruling continues a stay that was already in place because of questions about Kentucky's means of lethal injection, as well as other issues. Spokesman Kenneth Mansfield of the state attorney general's office, which defended the regulations, said that office is reviewing the ruling.

Ex-band leader pleads not guilty in rape case

HOPKINSVILLE — A Hopkinsville High School band director pleaded not guilty to rape charges on Wednesday after he was accused of having sex with a student. His wife, a former assistant commonwealth's attorney pleaded not guilty to witness tampering. Jordan Seth Peveler and his wife Hannah Peveler were arraigned in Christian Circuit Court. Jordan Seth Peveler is charged with nine felonies involving rape, sodomy and an unlawful transaction with a minor. A warrant states Peveler provided marijuana to a 16-year-old student at his home in June 2017. Authorities say Peveler then asked the student to perform oral sex on him while she was under the influence of marijuana. Months later, after the student had turned 17, investigators say Peveler had sex with her in his home. The indictment describes the alleged incidents as taking place in a school instrument closet and in Peveler's home. Hannah Peveler is facing three counts of tampering with a witness. She has resigned from Commonwealth's Attorney Rick Boling's office.

Fight over surveillance cams back with judge

LEXINGTON — A legal fight to reveal what kind of surveillance cameras Kentucky's second-largest city has and how they're used will return to Fayette Circuit Court after an order to release the information was reversed on appeal. A circuit judge ordered last year that the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government should release all documents related to 29 surveillance cameras used by Lexington police. The circuit court found the city did not offer enough evidence to support the claim that releasing the camera information would be potentially harmful to people and investigations. But the state Court of Appeals believes that determination was premature.

Bourbon warehouse fire allowed to burn for now

FRANKFORT, Kentucky (AP) — The fire that destroyed a massive Jim Bean warehouse filled with aging bourbon in Kentucky continued to burn Thursday as officials said the decision on whether to extinguish is still a day or two away.

Woodford County Emergency Management Director Drew Chandler said in a telephone interview the only thing left burning is ethanol fumes. Officials believe letting the fumes burn will have less environmental impact than spraying the fire with water, which could wash the bourbon into a nearby creek that flows into the Kentucky River.

An unknown amount of bourbon has already entered the water and was clearly visible on the Kentucky River on Wednesday. Officials from the Environmental Protection Agency have been on the scene since Thursday to help assess and contain the damage.

No one was injured in the blaze that erupted late Tuesday in the warehouse near the Woodford-Franklin county line, where about 45,000 barrels of bourbon were stored. It sent flames that could be seen for miles, shooting into the night sky and generating so much heat that firetruck lights melted.

Lightning might have been a factor, but fire investigators haven't been able to start looking for the cause.

Chandler said Thursday that all the barrels have burned and the liquid has pooled in the foundation "but there's so much debris, we can't see how much liquid is left."

Chandler said heavy equipment is being brought in to move the debris, but so far the fire is too hot for the equipment to get very near the site. A fire crew was standing by on Thursday and law enforcement agents were at the site to prevent trespassing, he said.

The Kentucky Energy and Environment Cabinet said in a news release that runoff from the fire is expected to create low dissolved oxygen levels in the Kentucky River and its tributary, Glenns Creek, which could result in substantial fish kills.

Duke Energy seeks 15% Indiana rate hike in 2 steps

From staff and wire reports

PLAINFIELD — Duke Energy has asked Indiana regulators for a 15 percent rate increase that would generate about an additional $395 million annually.

Duke, which serves about 840,000 electric customers in central and southern Indiana, said Tuesday it asked the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission for the increase to reduce emissions, improve reliability and invest in its grid.

It seeks a two-step increase, about 13 percent in mid-2020, and 2 percent in 2021, but timing will depend on regulatory approval.

The increase would vary among consumers. Duke said a typical residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt-hours a month could expect a total monthly bill increase of about $23. The Indianapolis Star reported residential customers would see an increase of about 19 percent while some industrial customers could expect an increase of 11 percent.

"Generating cleaner electricity, improving the reliability of electric service, and investments to serve a growing customer base are some of the key factors leading Duke Energy to ask the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission to increase its electric rates," Duke said in a news release about the request.

"We've made investments to meet the needs of a customer base that has grown by more than 100,000 since our last full-scale rate review," said Duke Energy Indiana President Stan Pinegar. "We also have environmental responsibilities and are taking significant steps to reduce our greenhouse gas emissions and move to a cleaner power generation mix. And we are upgrading our electric grid to improve reliability, help avoid power outages and speed service restoration when outages do occur."

The increase will vary among consumers depending on the cost to serve different types of customers, Duke said. If approved by the commission, the company's typical residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt-hours a month could expect a monthly bill increase of about $23, or approximately 77 cents per day, which includes both steps of the increase.

Duke said it is taking steps toward cleaner energy .

"Nearly 90 percent of the power Duke Energy produced in Indiana in 2018 was generated from coal. Duke Energy needs to continue to prepare for the likelihood of future greenhouse gas regulations and has proposed accelerating the retirement dates for some of its Indiana coal-fired power units. It is a moderate plan that staggers generating unit retirements over time and spreads out the customer rate impact," the news release said.

Citizens Action Coalition in a news release called Duke's plan "exceptionally disappointing."

"Duke Energy wants to force its Indiana customers to pay for a business-as-usual plan that continues to rely almost exclusively on dirty and expensive coal- and gas-fired power plants, ignoring the enormous potential of clean, safe, efficient and affordable renewable sources such as wind and solar," the environmental group said.

"Duke's plan is exceptionally disappointing," said Kerwin Olson, executive director of the Citizens Action Coalition of Indiana. "We hoped Duke would join the many utilities across the country, including NIPSCO, which recognize the economic realities of today's energy marketplace and are embracing a transition to affordable and clean energy. Duke's plan completely ignores the climate emergency and does little to nothing in addressing the crisis of affordability that saddle Hoosier ratepayers. What a shame."

"Clearly, Duke has lost touch with the outside world," said Environmental Working Group's senior energy policy advisor Grant Smith. "It's as if the company operated in a vacuum for the past decade, ignoring the explosion in wind and solar investment by many other utilities. Duke's preferred business plan for the next 20 years merely paves the way for higher costs and more pollution."

Citizens Action Coalition contest Duke need for rate increase

Citizens Action Coalition, a group opposing the rate increase, said that Duke's proposal includes:

- Little or no new investment in energy efficiency between this year and 2037
- No investments in solar or wind capacity before 2023
- Little or no investment in renewable energy battery storage over the entire 20-year planning period
- Delay in the closure of money-losing coal-fired power plants and replacement of those that are eventually shuttered with gas-fired power plants, which are a threat to public health and which worsen the climate crisis
- The erroneous claim that its coal plants are both efficient and low cost, even though Duke has admitted that the energy from those plants is more expensive than energy bought on the competitive wholesale market.

Blackjewel CEO to resign

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — The CEO of one of the nation's largest coal producers says he's confident the company will bounce back despite the shutdown of several mines after it filed for federal bankruptcy protection.

Milton-based Blackjewel LLC filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection Monday in U.S. Bankruptcy Court for southern West Virginia. News outlets reported the company cited at least $500 million owed in liabilities.

Blackjewel follows other major U.S. coal producers that have filed for bankruptcy protection in recent years, including Englewood, Colorado-based Westmoreland Coal Co. in October and Gillette, Wyoming-based Cloud Peak Energy in May.

St. Louis-based Peabody Energy Corp. emerged from bankruptcy protection in 2017 and both St. Louis-based Arch Coal and Bristol, Virginia-based Alpha Natural Resources emerged in 2016.

"The entire U.S. mining complex has been impacted by these events," Blackjewel CEO Jeff Hoops said in a court filing. "The entire industry either has gone through, or is currently going through, a period of financial distress and reorganization."

Hoops said the company and its partners had insufficient cash to operate and require additional liquidity, especially to pay employees' wages and benefits.

"We are confident that this restructuring will solidify Blackjewel's position as a significant participant in the (U.S.) coal market," Hoops said in a separate statement.

On Wednesday a federal judge approved a $5 million lifeline to help Blackjewel navigate bankruptcy on the condition that Hoops step down.

Court documents filed Wednesday said the financing from Riverstone Credit Partners will go toward providing security and personnel to extinguish fires at Blackjewel LLC's mines as it determines its next steps.

Blackjewel has about 1,100 employees in its eastern division at mines in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia. It also operates two mines with about 600 workers in northeast Wyoming.

Other recent bankruptcies in Wyoming's Powder River Basin coal industry haven't interrupted mining operations.

But this time, two enormous, open-pit mines operated in Wyoming by Blackjewel — Eagle Butte and Belle Ayr, the fourth- and sixth-most-productive U.S. coal mines — abruptly closed.

The department sent inspectors to check for any unattended hazards at the mines. The inspectors had no difficulty accessing the vast sites but weren't able to reach anybody at either Blackjewel or Contura Energy, Guille said.

Blackjewel holds the license to mine coal while Contura, a company created out of the 2015 bankruptcy of Alpha Natural Resources, holds the Wyoming state mine permits. An attempt by Contura to transfer the permits to Blackjewel has been pending before a Wyoming review board.

Blackjewel recently missed a $1 million tax payment owed to Campbell County.

"This closure is hardest on the individuals who work at these important mines and their families, and our most immediate concerns lay with them," Wyoming Gov. Mark Gordon said in a statement. "We are not unprepared for this set of circumstances and are eager to do all we can for the hardworking employees of these mines."

According to the Mine Safety and Health Administration, Blackjewel and affiliate Revelation Energy LLC were the nation's sixth-largest U.S. coal producer in 2017.

Best way to fight global warming is plant trillion trees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The most effective way to fight global warming is to plant lots of trees, a study says. A trillion of them, maybe more.

And there's enough room, Swiss scientists say. Even with existing cities and farmland, there's enough space for new trees to cover 3.5 million square miles, they reported in Thursday's journal Science . That area is roughly the size of the United States.

The study calculated that over the decades, those new trees could suck up nearly 830 billion tons of heat-trapping carbon dioxide from the atmosphere. That's about as much carbon pollution as humans have spewed in the past 25 years.

Much of that benefit will come quickly because trees remove more carbon from the air when they are younger, the study authors said. The potential for removing the most carbon is in the tropics.

"This is by far — by thousands of times — the cheapest climate change solution" and the most effective, said study co-author Thomas Crowther, a climate change ecologist at the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology in Zurich.

Six nations with the most room for new trees are Russia, the United States, Canada, Australia, Brazil and China.

Crowther figured that there were other more effective ways to fight climate change besides cutting emissions, such as people switching from meat-eating to vegetarianism. But, he said, tree planting is far more effective.

The study's calculations make sense, said Stanford University environmental scientist Chris Field, who wasn't part of the study. "But the question of whether it is actually feasible to restore this much forest is much more difficult,"

Madison native

was unique in many ways.

She also was a collegiate scholar and Division I athlete at Wichita State and EKU, a competitive swimmer, an artist, and a person with dreams of competing on American Idol in August 2004 in Nashville, TN. Her future was as bright as the smile on her face.

On July 6, 2004, in the Indianapolis area, someone ended those dreams when they took Molly's life. Although Molly's physical presence is gone, her spirit continues.

These past fifteen years have not lessened the memory of her to friends and family.
Someday we'll know all the answers to our questions.

But for today, as you often are, you are in our thoughts and prayers.

Health inspections become a public record 10 days after the inspection takes place. All records are supplied by the Jefferson County Health Department (812) 273-1942.

June 17

Boneyard Bar & Grill: Complaint: (A complaint received from a customer stating that the establishment is a dirty facility and that his food was served cold. Also, he complained that clean and dirty dishes were being handled by the same person with the same pair of gloves on. The last thing that was mentioned in the complaint was that when he was served two shots of Bourbon, both shots had bugs in them. Upon my inspection, I did take note that the flags hanging down from the ceiling were dusty and need to be cleaned off. As for the shots of Bourbon, I observed where the shot glasses are stored together and that most liquor bottles have a safety feature on their dispenser nozzles. Cleaning needed to the flag decors hanging from the ceiling.), one non – critical.

June 18

Horst's Little Bakery Haus: Three non – critical.

The Season's Café: No violations.

June 19

Auntie Anne's Pretzels (Pre-Operative): No violations.

June 21

A B Seafood (Pre-Operative): One critical, (Expiration dates are needed for products that are assembled. (Crab Cakes)), two non – critical.

Circle K (1219 Clifty Drive): Complaint: (Received a complaint that food was outside of dumpster laying on the ground. Also, that a smell was lurking in the air. Upon my inspection, I noticed that there were little bits of food surrounding the dumpster. This was due to the trash truck compacting their load while still on the property of the Circle K. Manager was instructed that the area around the dumpster needed picked up. Observed the lids to the dumpster open. They must be kept closed. Enclosure for the dumpster area is in need of being cleaned.), two non -critical.

Dutch Discount Market: Complaint: (A complaint was received from a customer saying that they received brown sugar ham and pickle loaf that was slime. Also said that the macaroni salad tasted off like the mayo may have been bad when it was assembled. Upon my inspection, I looked at all the packages of the foods that were mentioned. All the packages were date marked and nothing seemed slimey. No objectionable conditions noted at time of complaint inspection.

MAD magazine leaving newsstands

By RACHEL LERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — MAD, the long-running satirical magazine that influenced everyone from "Weird Al" Yankovic to the writers of "The Simpsons," will be leaving newsstands after its August issue. Really.

The illustrated humor magazine — instantly recognizable by the gap-toothed smiling face of mascot Alfred E. Neuman — will still be available in comic shops and through mail to subscribers. But after its fall issue it will just reprint previously published material.

The only new material will come in special editions at the end of the year.

DC, the division of Warner Brothers that publishes the magazine, said MAD will pull from nostalgic cartoons and parodies published over the magazine's 67-year run.

As Neuman would say, "What, me worry?" Worry not, for MAD has more than 550 issues packed full of political parodies and edgy humor to pull from.

The magazine set itself apart as a cultural beacon for decades with its unabashed tendency to make fun of anything and push conventional boundaries. One of MAD's best known comic series, Spy vs. Spy, featured two spies with beak-like faces and big eyes — costumes that are still regularly worn on Halloween.

It even seemingly parodied fellow popular magazine Playboy, with its Fold-In feature that appeared in nearly every issue. But instead of featuring scantily-clad models, the Fold-In printed — what else? — another joke. DC will keep publishing MAD special collections and books.

Illustrators and comedians, including one-time guest editor Yankovic, mourned the magazine's effective closure.

Josh Weinstein, a writer and producer of "The Simpsons" — which has referenced MAD many times — thanked the magazine on Twitter for its inspiring effect on eras of comedy.

"There was a moment in so many of our childhoods where you were the greatest thing ever," he wrote.

Comedian Harry Shearer, the voice of several characters on "The Simpsons," cracked on Twitter: "An American institution has closed. And who wants to live in an institution?"

When President Donald Trump referred to Democratic presidential candidate Pete Buttigieg as Neuman, while insisting he wouldn't be fit to serve as president, the 37-year-old candidate said he had to Google the reference.

"I guess it's just a generational thing," Buttigieg told Politico . "I didn't get the reference."

Cartoonist Evan Dorkin, who worked for MAD, wrote on Twitter that the magazine was long a source of happiness and inspiration for him.

"I hope we provided some smiles to some readers of the past 12 yrs," he wrote.

The magazine changed as its circumstances did, he wrote, including when the magazine began printing advertisements in 2001 and when it moved from New York City to Burbank, California, at the end of 2017. That move warped MAD's identity, Dorkin said.

MAD was long a venue for comic artists and cartoonists to grow artistically and shape national conversation. Well-known names such as Al Jaffee, Harvey Kurtzman and Mort Drucker were associated with the magazine for decades.

Unwelcome kindness of aging

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I find that I have a real problem with aging. When a flight attendant nicely says, "This way, young lady," I want to punch him. I can't stand the condescension! I hate being old. I am 76 and, while I still maintain an active life — teaching elementary school music and dance part time, and directing plays and musicals — I have found that I have finally begun to look my age.

This causes people in the Czech Republic, for example (where I am humiliatingly able to travel free on the trains and buses), to try to give me their seats and for people who don't know me to treat me with deference. While that seems like a good thing, it is not.

I think it is reasonable to be deferential to people with disabilities. I would very much prefer not being looked upon as someone with a disability because I am old.

The people who know me do not treat me as though I am old. I am vibrant and an active singer, dancer, director, teacher and church member in my community. It is only with people who do not know me that I am treated as though I am old. While I understand it, I resent it greatly.

Can't we just be nice to everyone and stop treating older people as aliens? Younger people: Hopefully you will get to be old, too. And then you will see what it is like to be treated differently just because you have lived longer. — Sick of Being Treated This Way

Dear Sick: I'm printing your letter as a wake-up call to anyone who might be guilty of this kind of behavior. Unfortunately for us both, not everyone will read this column, so there are always going to be those who continue acting this way. The key for you will be finding a way to rise above it. I'd be curious to hear from other readers about how they've dealt with this issue. I'll print their insights here.

Dear Annie: I'm 31, and in the last two years, people have started to ask me when I'm going to get married and have kids. Ninety percent of the people who ask these questions are strangers. Most recently, it was an Uber driver. He asked if I was married. I told him no, but that I was in a committed long-term relationship. He frowned at this as though it didn't make sense. Then he said, "Well, when are you going to have children?" I told him that I wasn't sure if I was ever going to. Then he looked at me like I'd sprouted a third eye.

Just last month, I was getting a facial and the esthetician was talking to me about her kids. I candidly told her how I like kids but have been realizing I might not want to be a mom myself. She started saying that I shouldn't wait too much longer. She didn't mean I shouldn't wait much longer to just make a decision, mind you; she meant that I shouldn't wait much longer to have children. It was as though she totally ignored what I said about motherhood maybe not being for me.

Annie, I wish this didn't bother me, but it does. I'm realizing I might have to keep fielding these questions for a while. But I'm hoping you'll print my letter so that people realize how hurtful it can be when they act so judgmentally about strangers' life choices. — Child-Free

Dear Child-Free: I printed your letter alongside the previous letter because there's a clear throughline: No matter what stage of life we're in, there are going to be people who try to put us in boxes according to societal stereotypes. But like all the best things in life, you can't be put in a box and wrapped up neatly with a bow -- and that can leave some people feeling unraveled. Do your best not to let it rankle you. You're exactly where you're supposed to be.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! Let Us Pause to Honor the Memory of

Mrs. Joanne Marie LaPorte Pietrykowski

Mrs. Joanne Marie LaPorte Pietrykowski, age 89, of Madison, Indiana entered this life on June 21, 1930 in Toledo, Ohio. She was the loving daughter of the late John "Jack" and Mary Lucy Duso LaPorte. She was raised in Toledo and resided there for 29 years. She graduated from Central High School in 1948 as Salutatorian of her class while having the same grade point average as the male Valedictorian. Immediately after high school graduation she was employed by the Bishop of Toledo as his secretary for five years. Upon his return from the Korean War Joanne and her high school sweetheart Arthur J. Pietrykowski were united in marriage on Valentine's Day 1953 at the Rosary Cathedral in Toledo. This happy union of 50 years was blessed with one daughter, Sharon and six sons, Thomas, James, Robert, Patrick, John and David. In 1959 Joanne and Arthur sold their home in Toledo and moved to a dairy and vegetable farm near Montello, Wisconsin. Because of the extremely cold winters in 1971 they moved their family to a farm near Madison, Indiana. From that day until present she spent her days as a homemaker; working on the family farm, and taking care of her large family who were the pride and joy of her life. She was an avid reader and football fan of Notre Dame, Packers and Colts. She loved reading, crossword puzzles, crocheting, and bookkeeping for the family business, Pietrykowski Products, Inc. which for over 40 years sold produce and vegetables to the Kroger Company. She was a devoted wife, loving mother and grandmother. She enjoyed gardening; was an excellent cook, but her favorite pastime was being with her family. She was a member for many years of St. Patrick Catholic Church in Madison and later St. Magdalene Catholic Church in New Marion until it closed and now a member of the Prince of Peace Catholic Church in Madison. Joanne passed on Wednesday, July 3, 2019, at 8:14 a.m. at the King's Daughters' Hospital in Madison, Indiana after a brief illness with her family at her side.

A LOVING FAMILY

Joanne will be missed by her devoted and loving family, Thomas Pietrykowski and his wife, Helen of Madison, Indiana, James Pietrykowski and his wife, Ann of Gahanna, Ohio, Robert Pietrykowski and his wife, Linda of Madison, Indiana, Patrick Pietrykowski and his wife, Marlene of Madison, Indiana, Sharon Pietrykowski Peak of Madison, Indiana, John Pietrykowski and his wife, Debra of Madison, Indiana, David Pietrykowski and his wife, Edith of Midway, Florida; her precious grandchildren, Rachel, Mark, Aaron, Steven, Ellen, Luke, Nathan, Jacob, Adam, Joseph, Stephanie, Gail, Tyler, Kelsey, Sydney, and Whitney; her joyous great grandchildren, Jackson, Audrey, Hadley, Andrew, Corbin, Emmitt, Xavier, Magnus and Barrett; and several other relatives. She was preceded in death by her father, John "Jack" LaPorte, her mother, Mary Lucy Duso LaPorte, her beloved husband and soul mate of 50 years, Arthur Joseph Pietrykowski, died July 6, 2003 and her brother, Larry LaPorte.

RETURN ENGAGEMENT: J. Michael Kelly steers the U-12 Graham Trucking on Guntersville Lake in Alabama on Sunday (above) during the season-opening race of the H1 Unlimited Hydroplane Series. Kelly back to compete for APBA Gold Cup

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

J Michael Kelly is used to going fast. Real fast. Like most Unlimited hydroplane pilots, he's most comfortable when he is strapped into a cockpit and rocketing down a straightaway at nearly 200 mph.

So for Kelly to spend last season mostly on the sidelines watching as others competed in the sport that he loves was trying indeed.

"It was tough. In my 16 years, I haven't sat out much," Kelly said. "I watched the races basically from home online. It was tough watching, knowing that I would have at least made it tougher on the other guys. But, sometimes, as a team, you have to sit out and do things and build for the future and that's what we did."

Kelly and his U-12 Graham Trucking team are back this weekend and will compete for the dual trophies of the APBA Gold Cup and the Indiana Governor's Cup on the two-mile track at Madison.

Kelly is no stranger to victory lane. He has eight career wins on the circuit, including a Gold Cup victory at Detroit in 2016 and a win at Madison in 2014.

The Graham Trucking's last full season was in 2017 and that year, Kelly hooked up with the Miss HomeStreet/Miss Madison's Jimmy Shane and the Delta/Realtrac's Andrew Tate to put on one of the best three-way duels the sport has ever seen. Shane and Tate each won two races while Kelly won the other as all three battled seemingly every time out.

Other than the races in Tri-Cities and Seattle, it was a two-man show last season as Tate and Shane went head-to-head. Kelly appeared at the Washington state races and made his presence felt, but after a brief 10-day run, the team's season was over.

"We struggled running only the two races last year, but we still ran strong and we podiumed both races," Kelly said. "But it was tough running only two races. It's much easier coming into the first race knowing that you're battling it out. We'll be in good shape all season this year."

Longtime sponsor Rob Graham purchased the boat and equipment from Ted Porter after the 2016 season and Kelly and the crew came along as part of the deal. The team ran the full circuit that first year, but then realized after the season that there was a lot of work that needed to be done to get the program back to the front.

As a result, the Graham Trucking team skipped the first two races of the eastern swing in Guntersville, Alabama, and Madison before competing in its "home races" in Washington state. The team then sat out the final two races in Detroit and San Diego.

Kelly said that the time away, while tough for everyone emotionally, was necessary.

"We built parts, went through our inventory and rebuilt a lot of parts and went through the boat and made sure everything was in top shape," Kelly said. "With us not running a full season last year, our boat was actually in really great shape this season so we didn't have to do a lot of additional work to it."

Kelly won't be the only driver for Graham Trucking this season. Rookie Corey Peabody, who grew up next to Kelly and went to school with him, will steer the U-98 Graham Trucking entry as part of a two-boat team.

THURSDAY SETUP: The crew for the U-6 Miss HomeStreet/Miss Madison take cover in the shade of their boat (above) while waiting for set up of their pit area. A flat tire on the pit tractor caused the team to wait nearly an hour on setup. J. Michael Kelly, driver of the U-12 Graham Trucking, signed the repaired sponson on the U-440 Bucket List Racing (right). The two boats collided during the Southern Cup at Guntersville Lake Alabama last weekend. Testing and qualification for this weekend's race was scheduled for Friday with racing Saturday and Sunday. Thurston picks up 3rd win on the year

sports@madisoncourier.com

Former Madison Cub Ryan Thurston picked up a win and saw action in a pair of games for the Gary SouthShore RailCats in their three-game series at Texas this week.

Thurston, a left-hander, pitched a scoreless inning and allowed a hit in Gary's 7-6 win on Tuesday. Thurston entered the game after two other pitchers had allowed five runs in the seventh and got the RailCats out of the jam. Gary then scored two runs in the eighth to hand him the win.

On Thursday, Thurston worked an inning and two-thirds in Gary's 10-5 win. Again entering the game in the seventh, Thurston struck out two while not allowing a baserunner to help secure the win.

The victory on Tuesday improved Thurston's record to 3-0 on the season with a 3.13 ERA. In 18 innings with Gary, Thurston has allowed eight earned runs with 17 strikeouts and nine walks.

Gary visits Cleburne, Texas for a three-game series this weekend.

The final insult: Women compete with Men, Copa

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer

Megan Rapinoe considers Sunday to be the final insult.

Just a few hours after the United States and the Netherlands meet in the Women's World Cup final in France, Brazil or Peru will celebrate winning the Copa America, South America's men's championship. And then at night, the United States or Mexico will win the CONCACAF Gold Cup, the men's title of North and Central America and the Caribbean.

A TV triple of championships for some is yet another slight for others.

"It's ridiculous, and disappointing, to be honest," said Rapinoe, the star American midfielder.

FIFA said playing the three finals on the same day would boost attention for all

"The scheduling of the different events has gone through a comprehensive consultancy process, which has involved all key stakeholders and taken into account different aspects of the women's and men's international match calendars," the governing body said in a statement. "It is a rare and exciting occurrence."

CONCACAF President Victor Montagliani told The New York Times, however, the decision to schedule the Gold Cup final for Sunday was not deliberate and was due to a "clerical error."

"It's terrible," said former American midfielder Aly Wagner, now Fox's lead World Cup match analyst. "It is so disturbing to me that the Women's World Cup does not have its own day to stand on its own and have a final to highlight these tremendous athletes and their work and their accomplishment. They wouldn't dream of doing it to the men. Why would they do it to the women?"

FIFA announced the Women's World Cup dates at the emblem launch on Sept. 18, 2017 , then revealed the full schedule the following Feb. 9 .

The Women's World Cup final will start at 11 a.m. EDT on Fox, followed by the Copa America final at 4 p.m. EDT on ESPN+ and the CONCACAF final at 9:15 p.m. EDT on FS1. Telemundo, a sister network of NBC, has Women's World Cup and Copa America Spanish-language U.S. rights, while Univision has the Gold Cup.

For the U.S. women's team, vocal advocates for gender equity, the three finals are just another in a long parade of putdowns that include lower prize money and arrangements inferior to those provided for the men.

"I don't really understand why there's such a resistance against going all-in on women," Rapinoe said. "I think it's pretty clear women in sport have not been treated with the same care and financing and all of that that men's sports has."

-non-points race

Graham purchased the boat from the estate of the late Stacey Briseno over the winter and had planned to run on just the west coast. But after it performed so well in a preseason test in the Tri-Cities in May, he decided to bring both boat on the full circuit.

"It just made sense to bring (the 98). The circuit needs the boats and I'm happy that we brought the boat for Corey to run and Rob Graham really did step up to the plate," Kelly said.

Kelly has raced as half of a two-boat team in the past and understands the unique situation that comes with having another boat on the water that is both a teammate and a competitor at the same time.

"We still have to go out there and do our thing. Nothing really changes. In a heat that I do get to run with him, if I have an opportunity to work with him or help him, I will," Kelly said. "But the main thing is that we've got to get points and they've got to get points. We definitely want to get both boats in the show in the very end but if we can work together, we will. Hopefully, other teams will do the same thing. I enjoy having teammates. It works out well."

The season started out well for the Graham Trucking team last weekend in Guntersville. Although they didn't get the win, Kelly won two preliminary heats and finished second in the final while Peabody ran enough laps to be fully qualified as a driver and ended up placing fifth.

Considering the long layoff, Kelly was thrilled with the way his first race back turned out.

"We put ourselves in the right spot and put ourselves in a position to win, we just came up short. But we can build on it," Kelly said. "I can't say enough about these Graham Trucking guys. I was just really happy with the way the weekend went. Second place isn't bad."

BRIDGE

THE FIVE TRUMPS SPLIT ONE-ONE

George Miller, an Australian-Greek moviemaker, said, "The trouble with eating Italian food is that five or six days later you're hungry again."

When you look at the final contract in today's deal, you will assume that East-West were winning enough money for a multi-course Italian or Greek feast. But read on.

South was an expert playing in a big-money game with a much weaker partner. When North jumped to seven diamonds, South passed, primarily because he would have been the declarer. But when West made his misguided double, South ran to his eight-card heart suit. East was happy to double that.

West led the club king. Declarer won with dummy's ace and called for the diamond ace. East ruffed low. After overruffing, declarer went to dummy with a spade and led the diamond king. Again East ruffed low. Declarer overruffed, returned to dummy with a spade and played the diamond queen. For a third time East ruffed low, and declarer overruffed. Now South cashed the heart ace, bringing down the king and queen!

"We were lucky the trumps broke evenly, partner," quipped a happy declarer.

South was Englishman John Collings, who died in 2005. I was his partner during my early 20s. I still believe he was the most naturally talented player ever, but his lack of discipline stopped him from being even more successful. I always called Collings the Bobby Fischer of bridge.
